

PRICE & SIZE CHART

Malmo synagogue, the largest in Sweden, was constructed in 1903 to service the local Jewish community, which was comprised primarily of Polish and Russian immigrants seeking the freedoms offered by Swedish law. Although its exterior dome structure, large hexagonal windows, and variegated brickwork are Moorish in character, its interior is almost of Nordic simplicity, with the flooring, pews and ark being made entirely of wood. The synagogue still functions as a community center despite it being the victim of a terrorist bombing in 2010, and features a Mikvah, Kosher restaurant and day school.
